

Interviewer: M. Padhoraskey
Date: May 9, 1957
Place: N.Y.C.

This being the first child interview we have conducted so far, there was no questionnaire to go by. Therefore, the interview may appear a little haphazard. We let the boy go on with his tale and we did not always stick to the essential answers.

I. Personal inventory

Name: Code number Ch-1-M

Age: 15

Sex: Male

Religion: Roman Catholic

Education: Finished 8th grade public school; was enrolled in the Industrial Apprentice School in Fall of 1956.

Parents: Both living in Hungary.

Has three sisters with parents.

This boy is a MEMBER of the proletariat. He lived under extremely bad conditions during the Communist regime and he received the average education for his social class...the ~~sixth~~ eighth grade, and the industrial apprentice's school.

He is a very bright and frank boy. He would like to appear a tough guy, but admits his childish fears also. The revolution was rather "fun" for him which he wouldn't have missed for anything.

The United States is a wonderland for him, and I think he will assimilate mentally very quickly.
