OPEN SOCIETY ARCHIVES (OSA), established in 1995 by George Soros, is an independent international archival institution affiliated with the Central European University in Budapest, Hungary. OSA obtains, preserves and makes available to public research resources in three main areas: the history of communism and cold war, particularly in Central and Eastern Europe; human rights issues and movements with particular emphasis on the second half of the twentieth century; and the philanthropic activities of the Soros foundations network and the activity of the Central European University.

REFERENCE INFORMATION PAPERS (RIP), compiled by staff archivists, are thematic finding aids aiming to guide researchers to all the relevant archival materials at OSA that relate to a certain topic. Issues of the RIP series are published irregularly, and always reflect the status quo of the holdings. The catalogue entries indicate the exact fonds reference, date span, approximate quantity, and, occasionally, medium of the records.

Non-Discrimination Policy
The Central European University does not discriminate on the basis of – including but not limited to – race, color, national and ethnic origin, religion, gender or sexual orientation in administering its educational policies, admission policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other school-administered programs.

HU OSA 301 Records of the Index on Censorship

This fonds contains 28 files (approximately 0.50 lm) on the issues of church history and religion covering the years 1965-1992. The files are organized by continents and thereafter by countries. They consist of press clippings, reports of non-governmental organizations, wire service dispatches and a substantial quantity of printed materials on issues of freedom of worship and religion.
HU OSA 304 Records of the International Human Rights Law Institute [IHRLI] Relating to the Conflict in the Former Yugoslavia

The church and religion related materials of this fonds can be divided into two main groups:

1. Books and publications (15 volumes) on the history of churches and religions involved in the Balkan wars (generally used as reference literature by IHRLI staff or received from the governments of the warring factions).

2. Reports on destruction of churches and mosques and forced conversion (approximately 600 pages).

In addition to these general reports prepared by international and non-governmental organizations, the records of IHRLI contain approximately 400 pages of other reports related to the religious aspects of the war in the former Yugoslavia submitted by local authorities, governmental organizations and churches from the war-stricken regions. These materials are also supported by a limited number of books and propaganda pamphlets from the same sources:

- Sacral Institutions on Target in Croatia and Bosnia-Herzegovina, Croatian Information Center, Zagreb, 1992
- War Damaged Orthodox Churches in Serbian Areas of Croatia in 1991, Serbian Orthodox Church publication, Beograd, 1992
- Erovic, Mujko: Why Are One Thousand and One Hundred Bosnian Mosques Destroyed, Palm Bay, 1996

Library materials

The OSA Library holds both books and periodicals related to church history and religious issues. Most numerous among the former are the reference books (encyclopaedias, dictionaries, directories, handbooks and guides) on religion published between the 1950-1990 in English and Russian. The latter include approximately 50 theological and church-related periodicals in seven languages.
Publications by the RFE/RL Research Institute

Press Surveys, averaging 15 pages each, consist of original language articles or English translations of the most important articles appearing in the East European press. Such surveys were made for Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, and Romania.

Information Items are based on interviews made in Western Europe with visitors and refugees from Eastern Europe.

Situation Reports contain summaries of current developments in Eastern Europe. These reports were prepared by the national units twice a week.

Background Reports are special studies providing perspectives on current events and trends in the communist world. The reports were issued on a regular basis, as well as in response to sudden developments, such as government reshuffle or an unannounced meeting of communist leaders.
